Traditional Wedding Expenses & Responsible Parties

You, your groom and your families may choose to divide expenses a little differently, but here is a basic guide to the traditional expenses that are involved in the planning of your wedding... and also who traditionally pays for what.

The Groom

- Engagement ring
- Bride's wedding band
- Marriage license and legal fees
- Officiant fee
- His tux
- His boutonniere
- Boutonnieres for his groomsmen
- Bride's bouquet
- Flowers for mothers on both sides

The Groom's Family

- Their own wedding attire and travel expenses
- Rehearsal dinner
- Wedding gift to the bride and groom
- Grooms cake
- Any other costs you agree upon

The Bride

- Groom's wedding band
- Bridesmaid luncheon
- Lodging for her out-of-town guests
- Wedding gift for the groom
- Gifts for her attendants and flower girl(s)

The Bride's Family

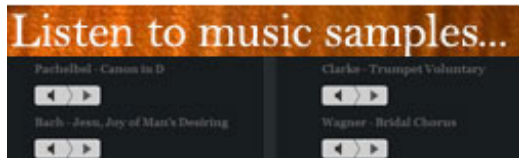

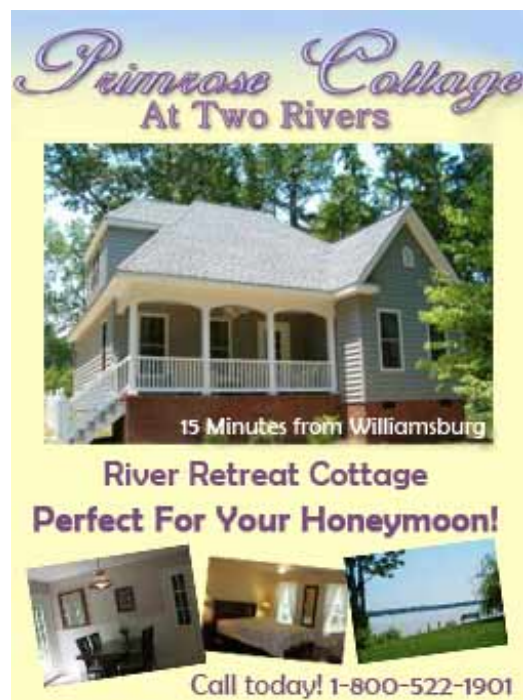

- Their own wedding attire and travel expenses
- Bride's wedding attire
- Wedding invitations, save-the-dates, programs, announcements, calligraphy and mailing costs
- Flowers for ceremony and reception
- Personal flowers for attendants, grandparents, guests of honor, etc.
- Wedding Planner
- The wedding ceremony, including location rental fees, organist, aisle runner, decorations and any other additional costs
- The wedding reception, including hall rental, caterer, beverages, cake, decorations, and any gratuities
- Wedding band, DJ and entertainment
